A Makeup Post

I in no way am a makeup junkie. I think I'm possibly progressing slower than the rest of my female peers when it comes to that department. I stepped into Sephora once in my life and it was only because a friend wanted to check out their stuff. And I remember feeling totally out of place in there. My palms got sweaty as soon as any sales associate got within 5 feet of me. "Get the hell away, Get the hell away" I thought. Fuck, I made eye contact! Move to the next section before she can catch up!

But, what little I do love in the world of makeup is Nail Polish and eye liner. Never leave without eyeliner and nail polish is just fun! My body automatically break out my colorful nail polish when Spring hits. And when fall hits my nails are usually orange or bare. But this year I've noticed a trend in polishes. Glitter Top coats seem to be a hit. I like glitter! I like polish! ^-^ So I hit up a local pharmacy of mine (CVS) and brought 4 polishes.

So I played around with the Revlon set on one hand and it came out so sparkly! I've never worn black polish before since I always associated it with short bitten nails and black seemed to always lose its luster after a while. But I love this combo! And its perfect for Halloween! I think I might stick with this for a while. 😊

Pardon my pictures/nails. I've never had good hands. This self-manicure will get ruined in a approximately 3 days since I work with hands so much. DESIGNING that is. And cutting paper. -

Rainy Monday's

What's New? See below.

That's a awfully sad cat we have here.

Snapshot of a pregnant long haired cat Sunday afternoon.

Brought some food for her and she was gone by the time I returned.

I was sad. T^T

Working hard.

Representing the elderly ladies of my neighborhood.

Staying classy while out buying loaves of bread and butter.

Finger Bling

Detailed adjustable rings for your fingers featuring my Nesting Doll illustrations.

Cut, Pasted and Sealed by me. Handmade Love

WIP Obahe Chan illustration.

Maybe I can get it done in time for Halloween.

If my graphic novel reading self would allow it.

Starting today its officially my 5th week of working as a designer at Orbit.

I'm loving it and I don't feel tired going into work. I love that I love my job.

P.S. Is there a way to change the leading on WP?

Forever Young

Remember back in the day when you were a kid? What's stuck on repeat in my head is the theme song to the Toys R' Us Commercials back in the day. I don't wanna grow up, I wanna be a Toys R Us Kid. How can I forget?

And as my birthday nears, I'm singing the Toys R Us song to myself like a broken record as if I don't want to forget that message. I really don't want to grow old. I want to be young! And my solution to that? I'm gonna throw myself a birthday party elementary school style. REMIXED that is. I want to give out goodie bags! Goodie Swag! Who doesn't like free swag? Screw those mini bite size candy bars. I got to start thinking on more sophisticated goods now. And I want balloons, balloons, balloons. Full and bursting with color against the summer sky. I envision it to be like UP. Just curtains of colors waving in the blue sky. And at night, I've prepared sparklers so we can all light them up together.

How simply magical would that be? And I would be in the company of those I adore. I've let year after year pass me by without remembering a single day. I want this to be a year for me to remember. I'm officially a adult now. Fresh out of school; out and about in my first REAL job and I want to make new memories I can look back and smile on.

And my polaroid camera is by my side to capture it.

New Beginnings in the Middle of June

Hello,

I've been M.I.A for a while now but outside the internet world I've been working on developing a line of my own products. I just need to push myself further to put the idea into fruition.

In other news, I've finally changed my header and layout to make it brighter and to bring happy days to readers! ^-^ I've kawaiiified Mr.Cupcake.

Be Happy, Stay Happy and keep an eye out for pictures!

Rainy Days

I love discovering new illustrators. Coming from a fine arts background, illustration holds a special place in my squishy hopefully red heart. While researching for Chinese myths online (which btw does not have a whole lot of information) I came across Joey Chou. His art is the kind you want to put up on the walls as a framed print. It seems he is able to switch styles easily and beautifully but yet also make it exclusively his. Here are some samples

And yes I do realize they are done in all different mediums, that's why they look different.

I am in love with his painting style. It's so serene and the palette's are beautiful. Although, I'm not sure if he colored this in photoshop with various brushes or its the ol fashioned way with horse hairs and trees.

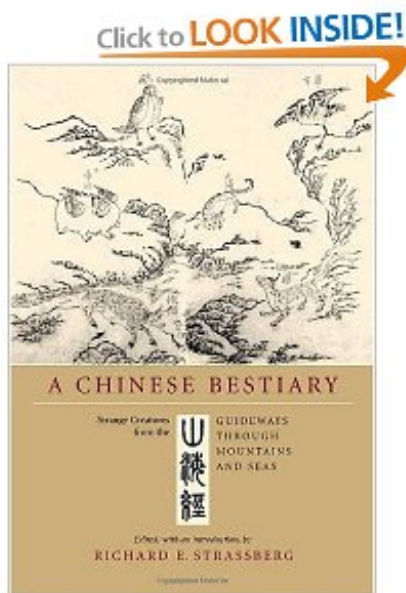

Vector style characters. Cute!

All images property of Joey Chou. His website is @ www.joeyart.com.

That’s what I love about being in the publishing field. We are able to work with talented illustrators and photographers. I’m a j. designer now where I don’t yet have control over who I can hire, but hopefully in 3-4 years, when I have control over covers, I can hire talent like Joey to work with.

I was looking up a specific book when I stumbled across his site. And it seems Amazon is stocking it but it’s a hefty $64. Too bad 😞 I just made a large book order from them which I haven’t received yet. But it seems it would be a useful reference book for me as I start my new collection of characters.

But considering the amount of research the author put into the book, $64 isn't bad. It's filled with lots of images (plates and illustrations) and translations of the Chinese book Shan Hai Jing. If anything is worth buying in this world its 2 things. Food + Books. To eat and to gain knowledge is all I need.
